NEW YORKS DROP ANOTHER. THEY GIVE THE BROOKLYNS A

GOOD RUN FOR A WHILE. Champions Pull Themselves Together and the on the Polo Grounds-Bostons, Pittsburgs and the Reds Also Win Their Games.

The Brooklyns added another victory to their list yesterday, at the same time administering the third defeat of the series to the New Yorks. As the Philadelphias were defeated again by the Bostons the lead of the Champions in the race s still further increased, while the New Yorks are sent a bit lower into the tail-end position. The Cincinnatis won from the Chicagos, which places those clubs close together at the head of the second division. For third place the race is quite close between the Bostons and Pittsburgs. Gleason was declared safe at first base on a close decision, and the ruling was the signal for every man of the visiting team except Sheckard in left field to converge on the umpire and expostulate wildly and loudly. Capt. Kelley's voice could be heard above all the rest yelling at the official:

The New Yorks made an absurd kick, which lasted some minutes, in the eighth when Hickman knocked a three-bagger hearly to the centre-field ropes. They asserted that the ball went beyond the ropes and the batsman was, therefore, entitled to a home run, but as a matter of fact the ball did not roll to within fifteen feet of the ropes. The hit was a very long one and was the batting feature of the game. There was a slight fire in the lower grandstand, caused by a lighted cigar, but it was quickly extinguished with no damage. HARVARD SURPRISES YALE. Wins the Ball Game at New Haven to the Chagrin of the Alumni. NEW HAVEN, June 26.-Before a crowd of 9,000 persons Harvard totally surprised Yale and spoiled commencement week here to-day by winning the annual class day baseball contest by a score of 3 to 0, in one of the closest and best-played games ever seen on Yale field. It was a veritable survival of the fittest in a pitchers' battle between Robertson, Yale's star twirler, and Stillman, who, after being knocked out of the box at Cambridge last week, shut Yale out and only allowed five hits to-day. Both colleges put their best collection of players in the field and for six innings it was an almost perfect exhibition of baseball, neither side getting beyond second base. The crowd, which in view of Yale's easy victory on Harvard's own diamond last Thursday had expected a one-sided contest to-day, were too astonished to cheer after the first few innings. At the start both teams went out in one, two, three order. This was the case up to Yale's half of the seventh, when Sullivan led off with a long hit to deep left field and he was clear around to third before the ball came back to the diamond. Five thousand alumni of Yale and their friends who saw victory coming their way at this stage rose and the din was Racehorses, Trainers and Owners Ruled Off at St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 26 .- At the Fair Grounds today the judges ruled off the turf for life the horses Maidstone and Senator Sullivan, the latter being one which has never started; F. Hogan, one of the owners of the two horses named: John Henderson, their trainer; D. Routzhan of Girard, Ill., and William Clayton of Virdan, Ill., two friends of Hogan. In addition Jockey Howell, Frainer W. B. Howell and the owner of Gardner are denied all privileges of the ground, including admission thereto. The ruling ends thus: "This case is not closed." The action of the Judges was taken after an investigation of the Madstone-Maul Wallace, Malay race of Monday, which was followed by a fight between Owners Hogan and Muldoon, Muldoon called upon Judge Murphy to-day and filed a charge of fraud against his partner and ostensible trainer, Hogan. He said that on recommendation of Hogan he had bet $500 on Maidstone and wired Tim Sullivan to pince all the money he could get on the horse, and that Hogan knew it was not "meant." A considerable part of Muldoon's testimony was correbe rated from other sources. A supplementary ruling was made that no further entries would be accepted from the stable of Gabriel & Co.

Rain Spoils the Racing at Auburn.

CREWS ON THE THAMES.

The Harvard and Yale Oarsmen Indulge in Moderate Practice.

GALES FERRY, June 26 .- Cool weather favored the Yals and Harvard oarsmen this morning when they started in on their regular practice, and the change in the temperature was thoroughly appreciated by the crews after their experience in the sweltering sun yesterday. No long distances were rowed, all the coaches keeping the men near their respective quarters Yale's oarsmen were out scarcely an hour, rowing in the vicinity of Horton's Cove Bridge. Coaches Gallaudet and Brown gave their men several trials in starts. The coarsmen were cautioned on their indidual faults and impressed with the great danger that hung over a crew that did not pay attention to the stroke and failed to pull together. Yale's four-oared crew had undergone a change, Hugh Auchincloss going out of the boat on account of illness. Cross has been put on and the positions occupied by the men as they now row are: Lincoln, bow; Mitchell, 2; Cross. 3; Hooker, stroke; Armstrong, and bids fair to give the Eli crew a fast race or Thursday. Coach Storrow stands in the bow of the launch with the big megaphone in hand and closely follows every movement made by the crew. He is very quick to detect a fault and loses no time in telling the oarsmen just where they are slow or fast as the occasion may be. "The Varsity crew is doing as well as expected it would under the circumstances," said Coach Storrow to-night, "but three days is too short a time to pre-pare oarsmen for a long-distance race. The loss of Higginson was a severe blow and the effect is quite noticeable. Harding is pulling a strong oar and Builard is gradually falling into line, but it is a question what Harvard's 'Varsity and freshman crews had a crap for half a mile at 6 o'clock this evening, the start being made at the one-mile stake and the shells were pointed unstream. The freshmer, as usual, hit up a 34 stroke at the start and threatened to leave the big eight far in the rear, but the steady 30-st oke of the 'Var'tty onrsmen soon had a telling effect. When the half mile had been rowed, the Freshmen were over a length behind. The latter were inclined to be rattled when the other boat crawled away from them, and did considerable spisahing. The 'Varsity crew pulled a clean stroke, Har'ing and Bullari rowing like old timers and giving a good exhibition of biads work. Coach Sterrow gave considerable spisahing. The 'Varsity crew pulled a clean stroke, Har'ing and Bullari rowing like old timers and giving a good exhibition of biads work. Coach Sterrow gave considerable attention to Harding, trying to breik nim of his habit of taking too short a stroke. Harding is conceded to be one of the strongest men in the basel and no fear is entertained that he will not be in good condition at the finish line in the lour-mile race.

Workmen were engaged to-day repairing the float at Red Top which was wrecked by the waves of the passing steam yachts on Monday evening. The side of the float where the oarsmen shad to wade through the water when they went out and returned from practice. Several of the men complained of their feet being chafed to-nicht and the trouble is assigned to their rowing while their shoos and stockings were sonking wet.

Yale's and Harvard's quarters and there was sorrow at the former and hilarity at the latter place when the game was won by the Cambridge nine. The whistle of the launch John Harvard was kept tooting for five minutes, and several of the employees about the boothouse were sent out skirmishing for barrels and boxes to pile up for a bonfire to-night. Fireworks were ordered from New London, and there was a grand pyrotechnical display this evening.

Capt. Higginson slept in the large tent near the training quarters last night, but the weather is so cool to-night he will probably choose his room, which will be more comfortable, though not so easy of acress as the tent on account of his crippled condition. He speeds the day on the porch fronting the river with his injured and is though a glass the maneuvres of the crews on the water. He suffers scarcely any pain and says he will remain at Red Top until the races are rowed.

Third Race—University eights, start at 12 noon. Pour miles down stream, ending at drawbridge. Navigation has been suspended during the races under an act passed by Congress. United States revenue cutters Dallas, Capt. Smith, and Gresham. Capt. Walker, will see that this act is enforced. Special attention should be raid to this ruiling. Steamers and yachts should drop anchor above the railroad bridge, outside of the police lines, at least one-half hour before the time set for the first race.

Owners of small craft should remember that the freshman race last year was dangerously interfered with at the finish and the lives of the crews imperilled.

Special police in launches will be on duty above the drawbridge to assist the revenue cutters in keeping the course clear.

The judges' boat, Parthenia, will be anchored at the finish on the arrival of the freshman crew on the river one gan will be fired from the Parthenia. A second gun will be fired from the Parthenia and a second gun will be fired from the Parthenia and a second gun will be fired from the Parthenia and a second gun at the finish of the reshman race. Stehle Turns His Ankle, but Keeps on Rowing - Work at Poughkeepsie.

POUGHKEEPSIE. June 26 .- An accident simi or to that which disabled Capt. Higginson of Harvard last night befell Fred Stehle, who rows 5 in the University of Perasylvania crew; and although he is not laid up it is feared that his seat will be a weak spot in the boat on Saturday. On the way to the quarters in the 'bus after practice Stehn felt thirsty. When near town and while the 'bus was still in motion he got up and, with the remark "I'm going to get a drink," he leaped to the ground. As he struck he made an exclamation of pain. He had turned his ankle, which was weak from an injury received at football. There was a scramble among the nei to reach him and in an instant he was surrounded. The injured ankle was bared and measures were taken at once to keep down the inflammation. He was carried to the house and put to bed and Coming as it did on the eve of a race for which Ward has been preparing with more than usual care, it had a disheartening influence on him and for a while he lost his characteristic cheerfulness. It was arranged that Stehle's place in the boat should be taken by Sinkler, who rows at 2 in the four-oared boat, which would pretty effectually break up the combination, while not improving the team work of the 'Varity, Stehle's appearance at the bouthouse this to row, did away with the necessity of malthought his injury was more apparent than real. allowed Stehle to take his place. Stehle had his ankle swathed in bandages and this morning it felt quite stiff, but this afternoon he was able to take his share of a four-mile pull and do his work well. Two doctors are attending him, and there is no sore ankle nearer than Harvard's quarters which is being looked after with more solicitude.

The two Quaker eights and the four-oared were on the river at 11 o'clock this morning. Ward sent them about three miles down the stream, and at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon the three crews paddled up on the west side, pulling a 32-stroke in a finished way. The fine form of the 'Varsity eight inspired the "freshies" to pull their stroke cut and as a result both eights showed a decided gain over their first work on the Hudson on Saturday. The four-oared crew went about two miles and returned, while the 'Varsity eight and the freshmen went to the head of the course.

Ward had the "freshies" pace the 'Varsity to the beathouse, and they did the work nicely, finishing the two miles and a haif not much more than two lengths in the rear. The freshmen stopped at the boathouse and the 'Varsity went on over the course. Coming down the river the freshmen were directly in the wake of the 'Varsity, and so evenly did the two crews keep in stroke that it was difficult to mark the line between them. The stroke was kept at about $2$ and run up to 36 on spurts. In each shell the crews swung well inside, and the boats travelled smoothly and evenly. The improvement in the work of the Quakers is exciting comment. They are in splendid physical condition.

Anxiety is feit about the University of Wisconsin men, and the impression is that they are overtrained or dangerously near it. The men look pale and listiess and are in direct contrast to the Columbia oarsmen, who are as brown and joily as berrypickers. Odea gave both crews a holiday this morning. He confessed that they were trained down pretty fine and needed a rest. At 4:30 o'clock the Westerners were in their shells again. They rowed up the river on the east shore through choppy water, which was especially annoying to the 'Varsity eight rowed 30 strokes to the minute nearly all the way down.

While there is no danger of the Columbia boys going stale, all, with the exception of the rowed 30 strokes to the minute nearly all the way down.

While there is no danger of the Columbia boys going stale, all, with the exception of the four-oar crew, got their freedom after the morning tractice for the rest of the day. Hanlan thinks well of the four, and as old Penn and Cornell also are strong in this respect the race promises to be close and exciting. Whatever difference of epinion there may be about dist the Columbia boys, under Hanlan's liberal treatment, look the picture of health.

"You ought to see them eat roast beef," remarked Hanlan to-day. "It would do your heart good the quantity of it they consume." ryon ought to see them eat roast beef, recarked Hanlan to-day. "It would do your heart good the quantity of it they consume."
Contraey is following the course he said he would when he came here of giving the men light work. His crews were not out at all this morning. It was a fine, clear day, with just breeze enough to stir up the water a little, at the reasons for keeping them quiet were not connected with the weather conditions.

Preparations for the races on Saturday are well under way. The taigets to mark the lanes have been placed on the bridge and the shore marks are in place. As five crews will compete in the 'Varsity race the outside shell will take a lane well out in the river and paring under the middle sonn of the bridge. The other four crews will go beneath the west truss span.

All of the members of the Wisconsin 'Varsity All of the members of the Wisconsin Varsity eight have lost in weight, since their arrival here. Alexander and Strait, who were overseens by the heat yesterday, did not take their sears to-day. Their places were filled by Lownsberry and Moffatt. Alexander has loet five pounds. The change in climate is considered accountable to some extent for the setback.

Lasker, Pillsbury, Showalter, Marshall, Janowski. Laster, Phisbury, Showatter, Marchall, Janowski, Tsebirorin, Maroczy, Schlechter, Marco and Micros have promised to take part in an international chess tournament to be player at Monte Cyrlo in December. The French player, Arnous de Rivière, has be naked by Louis Blum, director at Monte Cyrlo, to arrange the teumey. From 10,900 to 15,000 frames in prizes will be distributed.
